I checked this book out many times as a child from my school library. As an adult, and a professional chef, it still brings me to tears. Anyone who cooks, teaches, or raises children will find it MOST amusing!

This little book is a treasure! There are 50 pages of recipes, as seen through the eyes of kindergartners. If you want a recipe for Lemon Pie that starts with 10 cherries, this is your book! Banilla Cake and Skabetti are in it, too. Safety tips are included -- "get a high person to know when to stop the stove". You can't read this book without laughter. Absolutely delightful!

Wow, I have vivid memories of this book from my childhood (70's kid) but could never remember what the name of this book was... my copy had long since vanished. What I did remember however was "skabetti and meatballs" which I did a Google search for, and voila! Here it is! Just ordered a copy from a reseller via ... can't wait to revisit this gem!

Peas...ingredients: everything but peas. How to cook them? One at a time! A quote from one of the recipes. And then there's the cryptic "Makes enough for all 4 of us - but not Freddy!" (My guess is that Freddy is the dog.) I read this book over and over whenever I need to laugh.
